Hiram Johnson's Victory
The Country Is All Right
Legless Mr. Malone
Peter Manning's Record

Copyright, 1922, by Star Co.
Hiram Johnson's victory in California is good news for the whole country, which needs such men in the Senate. It does not surprise anybody that knows California. A State progressive in everything else, going forward in a thousand directions, could be nothing but progressive in thinking and voting.

The people of California believe in government for the people of the whole country. And Hiram Johnson represents that belief.

Nothing the matter with this country, says Judge Gary of the big steel company. "The fault is in individuals." Correct, and the chief fault in individuals applies to 80 per cent of them. They devote thought to everything except the MOST IMPORTANT THING, their VOTE. Dependent on laws, they allow politicians, usually self-selected lawyers, to do the governing and make laws for them. Men that have no experience, special training or executive ability, climb into the most important seats. When individuals vote intelligently the nation will have fewer troubles.

A New York beggar, "Bumpy Malone," is prosperous in private life. Having no legs, he travels the sidewalks sitting on a board with four little wheels, pushing with his hands. At 25 cents he has artificial legs, and fine clothes, also an automobile and a chauffeur. It is said he collects $100 a day from charitable people. The newspapers write about it, quite excited.

"Stimpy" Malone gifts are voluntary: in each case the giver enjoys a pleasant thrill of self-approval, worth the money.

Newspapers might pay attention to some other collectors, the corporations practicing "taxation without representation," about which our ancestors got so excited, and which we take so calmly. Any one of a dozen corporations takes out of the public in a minute more than legless Mr. Malone can collect in a year.

Peter Manning has broken a trotting record. Before you could buy, for one-tenth the price of a good trotter, an automobile that would beat any trotter on earth, the news of a mile trotted in 1 minute 69 3/4 seconds would have been great news.

Now it amounts to nothing. You need not be very old to remember the excitement about Mand S. Old William H. Vandebilt, with the long side whiskers, thought more of her than he did continued on Page 3, Column 2.

COX'S LIFE THREATENED BLAME LAID TO ALLEN

JEWS ARE BARRED AT HAMPTON BEACH

The ejection of Mrs. Alfred Kann from the Cliff House at Winthrop, because she is Jewish, has uncovered a trail of other Summer resort hotels which have established a policy of barring Jews.

"During the summer season, not only Jews are to be driven from these resorts, but other 'foreigners' as well. Admission to this effect was made in a Boston American reporter by a spokesman for a meeting held last Monday night in the town of Hampton, at which the subject under discussion was the barring from Hampton Beach of 'undesirables.'"

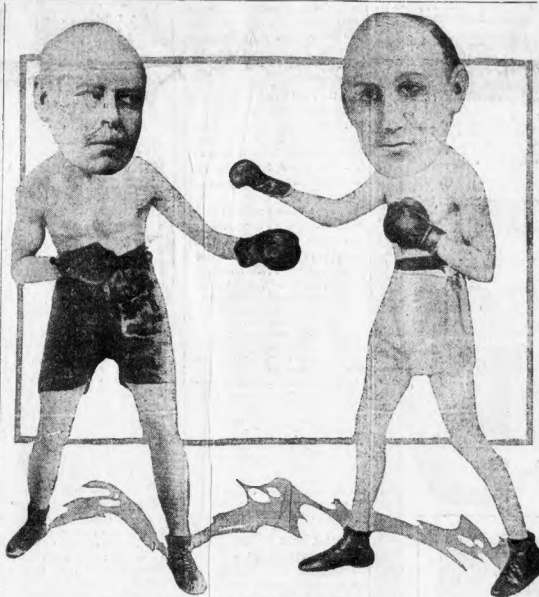

Members of the Board of Trade and local shopkeepers were in attendance.

INCLUDES OTHERS.
One of the gentlemen who called the meeting to order was asked for a definition of what he regarded as "undesirable."

He said:
"We mean Jews and all other foreigners, including Polish nationals and Greeks."

Following the meeting, a committee of three men and three women was appointed to visit all hotels and lodging houses at the beach, to ask them to bar "the undesirable."

Further, it is understood at Hampton Beach, that property will not be sold to Jews. Only one Jew—a wealthy resident from Haverhill—has been able to make his home at Hampton Beach, and it is reported that he purchased his property continued on Page 3, Column 2.

Attorney-General has in his corner Henry F. Hurlburt, president of the Boston Bar Association. Allen challenges for a decision but at the primaries on September 12.

GOVERNOR ATTACKS ATTORNEY GENERAL

Answering charges made against him yesterday, Governor Channing H. Cox at Faneuil Hall today delivered a smashing counter-attack against Henry F. Hurlburt and Attorney-General J. Weston Allen.

He told of receiving threatening letters, together with the bank commissioner, because of the failure of the attorney-general to prosecute the wreckers of the closed trust companies.

Before a large throng that packed the historic structure, and which included Mrs. Cox, who sat on the platform, the Governor called Messrs. Hurlburt and Allen to task for alleged sins of omission and commission.

He explained Mr. Hurlburt's animosity to him as possibly being due to his refusal to consider the president of the Bar Association for a Supreme Court bench appointment.

He said Mr. Hurlburt had advised a client to pay $10,000 blackmail to Dan Coakley, knowing it to be blackmail, and had taken a $1,000 fee himself for a few hours' work.

In ringing tones the Governor asked the attorney-general why he had waited to prosecute former District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier and Daniel H. Coakley until two weeks before the primaries.

Bank Commissioner Allen, he declared, had turned over the evidence on these banks to the attorney-general last November and December.

BRITISH STRIKE AT SHIPPING OF AMERICA

Washington, Sept. 1.—The long expected shipping war between England and the United States is on.

Britain struck the first blow when American Consul Fred C. Slater and Vice-Consul Russell W. Brooks, at Liverpool, were virtually expelled by the British government.

There is no doubt that the action was due to the fact that these two men had been entirely too successful in getting business for United States shipping. Board vessels to sail.

ADMIRAL CHARGES FRENCH OPENED U. S. MAIL

New York, Sept. 1.—Charging that the French was censoring the mail of American citizens visiting in the French zone of occupation in Germany, Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, U. S. N., retired, announced upon his arrival today that he would go to Washington to lodge a formal protest with the State Department. Admiral Osterhaus said several letters addressed to him had been opened. Several other letters addressed to him were not received.

GREAT BRITAIN NOW MAKING WAR ON AMERICAN SHIPPING

RIGHTS OF CONSULS DENIED

Shipping interests. Shipping interests of both sides have been mobilizing for some time, and now war is on.

The State Department is investigating with a view to protesting at the circumlocutionary and anti-American action. Meanwhile it has closed the consulate at Newcastle-on-Tyne, and sent Consul Slater to Oporto, Spain, and Vice-Consul Brooks to Bremen, Germany.

The action of the British government considered in connection with the rights of the United States government, the United States government has notified Ambassador George Harvey at the American embassy. The investigation is complete. The United States is without representation in one of the most important ports in Europe. The action of the British is interpreted here as the firing of the first gun in a bitter shipping war between British interests and American.

The attitude of the department was reflected in an official statement that the United States government recognizes the right of the British government to cancel the ex-emption of the American consulate officials pending investigation.

The charge of the British government is that Consul Slater and his assistant, "suspected" British subjects into taking American vessels both for passenger and business traffic. Where legitimate and leave off and coercion begins in this case.

Changes Her Mind

MRS. FRANK MAIKA.

She expected to provide grounds for discussion between the two governments if not an emphatic protest. The British government submitted sworn statements from British subjects alleging the American consul and vice-consul virtually refused to issue visas unless that applicants intended to travel on American ships.

One British subject claimed he applied for a passport visa at the Newcastle consulate and was practically refused a visa was "undecidable" unless he traveled on an American ship.

He received a visa from an American Shipping Board vessel—though not paying for it—and returned to the consulate. Upon explaining he had made the reservation, he obtained a visa at once, he said. He was left free, however, to travel on any ship he chose.

Another British subject alleged that the Consul, after delaying issuance of visa, finally said: "You seem to be a decent sort of a chap. I'll give

HOOR BADE TO GIVE SCORNED HUSBY A TRIAL

Woman's inalienable right to change her mind has been exercised by nineteen-year-old Mrs. Frank Maika of Chelsea, who stamped on her wedding ring and left her new hubby one hour after marriage.

The young woman who declared she would never bear the name of Maika, and that she would seek an annulment of the marriage, admitted today she might give her husband "a trial."

Returning from a neighbor's house where she had taken refuge, to her parents' home at No. 75 Division street, Chelsea, the former Alice Church calmly announced that she might change her mind.

The couple were married in St. Stanislaus Church, Chelsea, and later gave a reception to which a large number of guests were invited. The gathering was astonished after the reception when young Mrs. Maika declared she would not go with her husband, and fled to her mother's home.

Maika followed her and the girl stamped her wedding ring beneath her heel, told her husband she would rather die than live with him, and ran out of the house.

This time she went to the house of a neighbor, where young Mrs. Maika declared she would not go with her husband, and fled to her mother's home.

FIND PLOT TO KILL 3 RAIL PRESIDENTS

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Michael Kristchman, believed to be a leader of a ring of bomb terrorists, was captured today after the second bomb explosion in a week at the home of a railroad worker.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Disclosure of a plot to kill three railroad presidents or kidnap members of their families were made during the investigation of radical plots, according to the Chicago Herald and Examiner today.

The three rail heads against whom the plot was made were said to be the presidents of the New York Central lines, the Pennsylvania system and the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific. The home here of the ring leader was said to be under surveillance.

Police and Federal operatives here are under orders to start a vigorous drive against radicals and agitators believed to be behind railroad wreck and bomb plots. Activities here followed twenty-four hours of increasing disorders, bridge burnings and dynamiting of railroad property throughout the country.

Deportation proceedings against aliens arrested in connection with plots against the railroads are probable, authorities said.

Governor Smith of Illinois granted a requisition to extradite William Z. Foster, radical leader, to Michigan, where he is wanted on charges of criminal syndicalism.

Five men, including the chairman of two striking stevedores' unions, were arrested at Slater, Mo., charged with interfering with the mails. The charges include the alleged beating of a volunteer fireman, who was dragged from an engine cab.

It is alleged that, during a dance given by an association of nonunion motion picture directors, Kline drew a revolver and made threats against Bergen.

This story, which was told by a girl not yet named in the article, bears out the statement of Miss Alton Thornton that Kline knew of Bergen's attentions to his wife at least two months before the killing took place.

BODY OF GIRL FOUND IN RIVER

A mysterious river tragedy, with a young and attractive woman as the victim, was revealed with discovery of her body in the Charles River, near the Cambridge training bath house, near the West End bridge.

Whether she leaped into the water or was fatally down to death and thrown in, could not be learned from the first examination by the police and medical examiner. No marks of violence were apparent.

Not a mark could be found on her clothing which might disclose her identity.

She was well dressed, and her clothes were of expensive material. She wore no wedding ring or other jewelry.

For at least two days the lifeless form had been in the river. The body was found in the water from forty-eight hours to five days. The discovery was made by James Brennan, of No. 35 Truro street, Medford, who was bathing in the vicinity.

Police are employed in their efforts to establish the identity of the young woman, who appeared to be from twenty to twenty-five years old. The maid's form was slender, with a single-breasted, worsted suit and also from her narrow jaw.

Even the mother's name and the size of the shoes could not be found on the inside of the single-breasted pumps.

Dr. Magnath, who viewed the body and then ordered it removed to the North Grove morgue, said that it was probably a case of suicide.

The young woman wore two sets of silk underclothing. She is about five feet, four inches in height, weighs about 112 pounds, has brown hair and gray eyes.

When Brennan saw the body in the Charles River, he notified Police Commissioner Frederick D. Stearns, William C. Martin and George Johnson of the Metropolitan Police.

A search of the police records of missing persons for the last week failed to reveal anyone that answers the description of the young woman now at the morgue.

CHARMING GIRL WINNER NAMED BY JUDGES

The most charming girl in and around Boston was picked today and her name is Helen Chubb, the title "Miss Boston."

Her award came at the Hotel Lenox where the management had turned over to the judges the Italian room. Twenty-five of the hundreds of applicants whose names appeared in the Boston American were present when the chief beauty of all was picked.

Following the award the fortunate miss was taken on a tour of Boston's most famous shops, where she was equipped with all the needs of Midway for the conquest of beauty at Atlantic City, where all the expenses of herself and the chosen beauty of all was paid for by the Boston American.

Her chosen apparel for the conquest of Atlantic City consisted of this season's coat, two suits, two hats, shoes, slippers, gloves, hosiery, corsets, girdles, brassiere, negligee, gloves, bathing suit, bracelet, pearl necklace, flowers and either a permanent wave or some other form of hairdressing as she may desire.

She will leave Boston on the 9 a. m. train, Monday, accompanied by her mother or other chaperone. In the same Pullman with her will be guests from other parts of New England and who are en route to the pageant at Atlantic City, and a guide will be on hand to give every assistance, so that "Miss Boston" may give herself up to just enjoying the trip.

ONE WEEK OF JOY.

At Atlantic City, she will be escorted to her hotel, where a suite has been arranged for her. Then will begin a week of fun. She will compete for the honor of being "Miss America."

She may also appear at the Baiting Stevie, the first prize of which is a $10,000 gold Marmalade statue. Or she may be chosen by a motion picture manager from California for a $10,000 job, which may lead to stardom.

From the moment that "Miss Boston" is chosen, all her expenses for the week's trip, and those of her chaperones, will be paid. She need have nothing to bother her, as all the details of her trip will have been arranged.

The names of the winner will appear in Saturday's Boston American.

LUTHER BODDY DIES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Oswining, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Luther Boddy, twenty-three-year-old negro slayer of Detective Miller and Buckley last January, walked briskly to the electric chair in Sing Sing with a smile and a "So long, fellows," said his pen pal.

He was given the first shock of 1100 and was pronounced dead at 11:07. He did not lose his nerve, but with a cold and indifferent air presented himself to be strapped to the chair.

His gaze wandered over the visitors, and with a nod to Dr. Squires, prison physician, said: "Good-by, Doc."

AUTOS LIGHT UP AS FOG ENVELOPS CITY

If it isn't one thing it's another in the life of the weather forecaster.

The official forecast for today was "fair," and so while most good motorists were getting their heavy sleep rain fell quite copiously. Then the rainfall ceased, and Boston and environs were shrouded in a deep, dense London fog. The fog was so thick at 7:30 today that automobile headlights were turned on, and neighbor failed to recognize neighbor. Indications of clearing were apparent, however, and there was a strong prospect of good weather over the holiday.

TON OF PEA COAL AUCTIONED FOR $22

Dover, N. J., Sept. 1.—Severely cold and rainy weather, with a ton of pea coal made its appearance at an auctioneer's sale. Bidding on the ton of pea coal was dull compared to the bidding of the offerings for the ton of black peat. The ton finally was knocked down to a motion picture theatre owner for $22. He paid $2 to have it carried to his bin.

Railroads Face "Warlike" Operation

Washington, Sept. 1.—The country can look forward to a gloomy Winter of virtual wartime regulations of the whole railroad system, government transportation experts agreed today.

Even if the strike of railway men was settled next week, which is not likely, the tremendous burden placed on the carriers as a result of stoppage of repairs, the acute and shortage and the national impingement of crops, would be sufficient to cause tremendous inconvenience to passengers and shippers.

Bridge Dynamiters Rout by Shots

Cleveland, Sept. 1.—A plot to dynamite the Cuyahoga River bridge on the Belt Line Railroad was frustrated today when four men were discovered digging a hole near one of the main supports of the bridge.

The men, upon discovery, and the two guards, then escaped by jumping into the river and swimming to the shore and driving away in an auto.

Many shots were fired but none were effective. Traffic across the bridge has been suspended. All bridges in the city are under guard.

MAN BEGS PARDON FOR STEALING AUTO

Adams, Sept. 1.—"Please forgive me. I stole your auto and drove it to Ford City, Mich. You can find it at No. — street, Mike Jameson."

The automobile was stolen on the night of August 18.

WIDOW'S WRECK, SEPARATED FROM 6 SONS, THREE SEEKS DEATH

WIDOW'S WRECK SEPARATED FROM 6 SONS

Found in Drizzle on Worcester Square, Guarding Her Little Girl

In the City Hospital, gasping with pain, lies a woman who has sought succor of her own volition for a year, and is doomed to live.

To forget her troubles, Mrs. Margaret Briggs, twenty-eight years old, but much older than her years because of her bitter experiences, tried drink. She found that it helped only temporarily. She tried drugs. They, too, had a morning after.

As she tried that great narcotic—death.

Three times she attempted to kill herself with poison.

Each time science saved her life. Mrs. Briggs was found in a dazed condition, seated on a bench in Worcester square, shortly after midnight.

The rain drizzled down on her and her four-year-old daughter Rita, clothed close to her breast.

Suffering as she was from the effects of the poison she had taken, the woman was making pathetic efforts to protect the child from the chill morning damp.

HARD LUCK MARRIAGE.

At the hospital, at first, she refused to give her name and address. "I'm going to die this time," she said. "What's the use? No hope either. 'You are going to live,' she was told.

But it was only when the question of the disposition of Rita, her baby, came up, that she consented to let it be told who she was and where she had been living.

Despite her youth, this woman is the mother of seven children. Her own family knows only of the existence of six.

The Boston American learned that in January of this year Mrs. Briggs gave birth to a baby girl, which was later adopted by a family in Somerville.

At the time she was living in Bowdoin street, Revere, and when she was about to give birth to the child, whose father is not known, a priest who had interested himself in the case called for Mrs. John P. Ryan of No. 1146 North Street, who attended her.

Mrs. Ryan said, "I really know nothing of the woman except that she gave birth to a baby girl on New Year's day of 1922. I know that, because I was there at the time."

Regarding the life of the woman, her husband or her affairs I know nothing. I believe the child was born to a family in Somerville."

She has a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan, of Hano street, Allston, who told the story of this woman who had died of drink.

My sister for years has been living in a tragedy, said Mrs. Malloy. "I shall never forget her marriage to George Briggs."

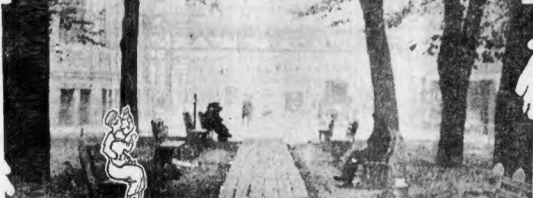

My sister has borne him seven children, although she's only twenty years old. Despite this she led a life of a hell. It drove her to drink. After the birth of George got a divorce and custody of the other six children.

IT RELIEF IN DRINK.

At that time on Margaret had a time in life—to find someone who would make her forget the pain of her married life. She thought that would still the ache because she had lost her soul. She took to drink more than ever.

"She made her home with me. I wanted a real girl that drink would make her forgetful. She was taken to the City Hospital and died. She was found in a dazed condition, seated on a bench in Worcester square, shortly after midnight. The rain drizzled down on her and her four-year-old daughter Rita, clothed close to her breast. At the hospital, at first, she refused to give her name and address. "I'm going to die this time," she said. "What's the use? No hope either. 'You are going to live,' she was told.

But it was only when the question of the disposition of Rita, her baby, came up, that she consented to let it be told who she was and where she had been living.

Despite her youth, this woman is the mother of seven children. Her own family knows only of the existence of six.

The Boston American learned that in January of this year Mrs. Briggs gave birth to a baby girl, which was later adopted by a family in Somerville.

At the time she was living in Bowdoin street, Revere, and when she was about to give birth to the child, whose father is not known, a priest who had interested himself in the case called for Mrs. John P. Ryan of No. 1146 North Street, who attended her.

Mrs. Ryan said, "I really know nothing of the woman except that she gave birth to a baby girl on New Year's day of 1922. I know that, because I was there at the time."

Regarding the life of the woman, her husband or her affairs I know nothing. I believe the child was born to a family in Somerville."

She has a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan, of Hano street, Allston, who told the story of this woman who had died of drink.

My sister for years has been living in a tragedy, said Mrs. Malloy. "I shall never forget her marriage to George Briggs."

My sister has borne him seven children, although she's only twenty years old. Despite this she led a life of a hell. It drove her to drink. After the birth of George got a divorce and custody of the other six children.

IT RELIEF IN DRINK.

At that time on Margaret had a time in life—to find someone who would make her forget the pain of her married life. She thought that would still the ache because she had lost her soul. She took to drink more than ever.

"She made her home with me. I wanted a real girl that drink would make her forgetful. She was taken to the City Hospital and died. She was found in a dazed condition, seated on a bench in Worcester square, shortly after midnight. The rain drizzled down on her and her four-year-old daughter Rita, clothed close to her breast. Suffering as she was from the effects of the poison she had taken, the woman was making pathetic efforts to protect the child from the chill morning damp.

FOUND DAZED ON PARK BENCH

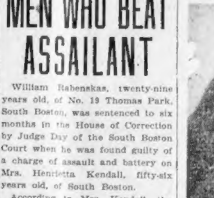

Scene in Worcester square where, after midnight, Mrs. Margaret Briggs was found dazed from drugs. With her was her little girl Rita, whose picture is shown with that of her nerve-racked mother.

"Nobody cares," she says, "whether I live or die." She is separated from her husband who has the custody of their six boys.

WIDOW'S WRECK SEPARATED FROM 6 SONS, THREE SEEKS DEATH

Mrs. Helen Silva, twenty-nine years old, of No. 19 Thomas Park, South Boston, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Day of the South Boston Court when he was found guilty of a charge of assault and battery on Mrs. Henrietta Kendall, fifty-six years old, of South Boston.

According to Mrs. Kendall, the trouble started at the beach near G street. While she was in bathing, Mrs. Silva was sitting on a bench and refused to get off. When she approached him, he assaulted her, knocked her down, dragged her into the water and kicked her. She was taken to the City Hospital, where she was confined seventeen days because of a fractured spine and numerous bruises about the head and body.

A posse of men and boys hunted Babensack after the assault and after finding him, he was taken to the City Hospital, where he was confined seventeen days because of a fractured spine and numerous bruises about the head and body.

He claimed that because of her lying on a bench and refusing to get off, he mistook her for a man.

Judge Day commended the action of the men and boys in beating the assailant up, saying that they were prompted by the same spirit that prompted Michael Petros to become a hero during the old war.

Arraigned before Judge Day of the South Boston Court, Roman J. Vasil was found guilty of a charge of assault and battery upon Mrs. Helen Silva, of No. 69 Broadway and ordered to pay a $25 fine. Vasil, who lives in Holliston, has an office on Broadway, South Boston, where he has been a constable of the City of Boston for ten years.

Mrs. Porter testified that Vasil called to her a woman for her assault and battery upon her husband. When she refused to take it, he struck her, pushed her out of the way and stuck it under the door.

A doctor testified that Mrs. Porter's side was black and blue as a result of the assault.

FILM OFFER TO MURIEL BEST EVER MADE

Chicago, Sept. 1.—A salary, surprising that of any star, even or opera star in history, was offered to Muriel McCormick today by William D. Sherrill, president of the Phonofilm Amusement Corporation.

Mr. Sherrill conferred with the actress of the two of the world's latest fortunes this afternoon in the hope of inducing Miss McCormick to star in four motion pictures under the name of Viviana, Miss Cor.

The literature represented by Mr. Sherrill has agreed to back any type of production in which the granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller agrees to appear. It was said.

The scenario of the silver screen production in which the talented young actress is to be starred has already been written. The adaptation of a novel by the James Warren has tentatively been titled, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" by Maria Muriel, the authors who have written many of the successes in which, Norma Talmadge has appeared.

Joseph Schickel, regarded as the handsomest man on the stage today, probably will be the opposite of the novel, Mr. Sherrill said.

DEMAND REMOVAL OF POLICE CHIEF

Ashland, N. H., Sept. 1.—A petition for the removal of Chief of Police H. J. Morrison, on the grounds of immoral conduct, has been presented to the selectmen by a committee of citizens headed by the Rev. Father McCormack and the Rev. J. M. Mather.

Selling New Lids to the Demobilizing Straw Hat Brigade Takes Courage

The Best You Can Say for the Flapper's New Job Is That It Was Timely After She Chatters Her Troubles on It.

By THE FLAPPER. CARL FRINK.

"Come in and get a straw hat before we find them to the news," screamed the sign in the hat store window.

"My, my," the mild looking man with the cotton umbrella said, wondering, "I've lived all my life on the farm and I never see a new hat as a straw hat now. Ya ha ha ha, to the city to learn things, huh, Ma?"

"If we gonna get the straw hat back I home you'd better get a move on ya. Ya, an' not so much talk," said Ma.

"What kind of a hat did you want?" asked, politely.

"Well, I see a hat back home on a feller from out-town that was right pretty," answered the customer.

"It was a grey sorta Fedora like with a bow in the back and a little red feather in it. Her ya got anything like that?"

MA WINKS.

"If you her," Ma spoke up, "ya needn't fetch it out. There's no call for a man to get sporty at your age. Ya. Ya was a derby for about a year or so since I've known you, but it's a derby you'll get now, or nothin'."

For a moment Pa hesitated and he was getting all ready for a round of battle of dander when Pa's son-in-law said:

"Back derby," he said, dutifully, "an' a derby."

"Two minutes later Ma let him out of the store with an iron hat resting squarely between his ears. The old one he carried in a paper bag.

The next customer crashed in.

"Think they're funny that bunch of bums in my office," he complained bitterly. "Just because it's September first they hafta to play fast and loose with a good fellow like me."

SUMMER'S OVER—WHAOK! "All right," I said, "calm down, ya punk. Here's something to ing his breath. "No use takin' it so hard, I guess. Trot out your latest Fall creation. Here's where Little Elmer gets hooked for a roll of smackers."

"How'd you like this one?" I said, handing him a two-gallon gas derby.

"Migosh," he screamed. "Take it away. It's got a lining like a baby's coffin. It gives me the willies."

"The youth fell for the fancy gas and took the air. Outside the store he clasped a gun on the back.

"Hey, Bert, old thing," he commented. "Summer's over."

"And with that he headed off and said Bert's hat in the general direction of the Custom House tower.

THIRD ATTEMPT TO WRECK LYNN TRAIN

Lynn, Sept. 1.—For the third time in six weeks an attempt was made today to wreck a train of the Boston & Maine.

Sections of a brake beam were found on a switch of the road between Fayette and Chatham streets. The discovery of the section was made by Officers John Casey and John G. Flynn a few minutes before a train was due to pass that point.

In the two previous attempts, the railroad officials were inclined to view the matter lightly, but on this occasion they telephoned to the Lynn police and demanded an immediate investigation.

Six weeks ago several car wheels were found placed across the tracks of the road about a hundred yards east of the Lynn depot.

Two weeks ago brake beam sections of the same type as those discovered today were found wedged in a switch near the Cottage street crossing of the Saugus branch of the road.

DENVER POLICE PROBE AFTER BUNCO RAID

Denver, Sept. 1.—Announcement that there will be a Grand Jury investigation of the Denver police department, flung out by one of the victims of alleged swindlers caught in that week's raid here in an effort to recover money the victim claims to have lost, and disclosure of additional information as to the arrest of the "bunco king," focused developments recorded today by District Attorney Van Cise's campaign against the alleged swindlers.

"The raid, which resulted in the arrest of more than thirty alleged confidence men, said to be members of a 'million dollar swindle ring,' was made by Van Cise's assistants and State Troopers, without the aid of the police."

A Nitro of Houston, Tex., filed suit to recover $25,000 from the men under arrest. He claims he lost that amount in a stock deal, engineered by the alleged ring.

It was disclosed that Adolph Duff, characterized by the district attorney as the "man behind the scenes" in the alleged swindle ring, had Duff's arrest been delayed thirty minutes all the other men caught probably would have escaped.

WOMAN KILLED BY FALL RIVER CAR

Fall River, Sept. 1.—An unidentified woman was instantly killed when an in-bound Newport Interurban car struck her as she was crossing South Main street. A card in her pocket bore the name Annie Sullivan, and police are seeking to find if that was her name.

COX APPEALS TO 'A RARY OF THE PEOPLE'

And in the budget which I presented to the Legislature shortly thereafter, in response to the Attorney General's request, we gave to his department every cent which he desired, which that year was $100,000 and some cents, being an excess of $25,000 from the previous year.

"During the summer time, when the Tufts trial was in process, he needed more money, and the Council, at my request, gave him $100,000 additional. And then, later, for the same Tufts case, in which it is alleged I did not help, the Council gave $125,000 more. Last year the appropriations for the Attorney General's office exceeded by $2,500 those of the previous year. He has had every dollar that he has asked for and has had the cooperation of my office.

"Colonel Foote of the State police will tell you that I directed him to place the whole State police at the disposal of the Attorney General's department. He would have been glad to do it anyway. It was his duty. Colonel Foote will tell you that I asked that the Attorney General be given the special bodyguard who has gone round night with him, in order that nothing would happen to him.

"In every way the Intelligence Department of the Commonwealth has been turned over to his office. There has been the greatest degree in every way to co-operate, in order that the whole truth might be done and that the guilty might be driven from office.

QUESTIONS MOTIVE.

"I wish I knew why Mr. Hurst had come here yesterday and make such an unwarranted and untrue attack, or rather misrepresentation, because if the keen lawyer reads between the lines, he will see that he has not stated it in the way that the newspapers have drawn the inference. Why should he make this attack?

"I presume, my friends, that I have been indicted. After the Tufts trial was ended the Attorney General came to me one day and said, 'Now, we must pay Mr. Hurst for his services.' I said, 'What do you think he ought to have?' He said, 'I think he ought to have $12,000.'

"I said, 'He hasn't worked a whole year, has he?' He said, 'No.' I said, 'I do not believe that I can approve of a bill to anybody for part-time services during the year, of an amount which is any greater than the amount the Attorney General himself receives for devoting his whole time to the duties of the office.'

"I said, 'I have told you how I feel about it, and I will not approve anything else.' He said, 'He will not take it.' I said, 'He can take it or leave it.'

"And nothing further was said until the Attorney General came into my office in great haste one morning and said, 'Mr. Hurst needs some money to pay his income taxes, right away. If you will approve this bill for $3,000, he will take it.' I approved it then and there.

SUPREME BENCH VACANCY.

Referring to talk of a possible vacancy on the Supreme Bench, Governor Cox said six or seven lawyers in his office one day were discussing the matter. Someone suggested Henry F. Hurst, and the Governor said:

"In the testimony which appeared in the Peters case in the Pelletier trial, evidence was given that Mr. Hurst advised his client to pay $10,000 to Mr. Caskley for blackmail, and then charged him $3,000 for just two or three weeks, negotiations of that sort with a lawyer, and I think that is discreditable for the president of the Boston Bar Association, and I would never consider him for the Supreme Court bench."

The Governor said another point, his reason for Mr. Hurst's animosity was the fact that he, the Governor, has had something to say recently about Mr. Hurst's close association with the Attorney General when he was in charge of vital

Highlights From Cox's Reply to Charges

Highlights from the speech of Governor Cox today follow:

"The responsibility for the failure of criminal prosecution of Caskley and Pelletier lies with Mr. Allen and with District Attorney O'Brien.

"The course of Attorney General Allen in skimming the cream of popular applause from a few half completed tasks is such that my sense of fair play cannot be restrained.

"I said I would never appoint Hurst to the Supreme Court because he advised his client to pay $10,000 blackmail to Caskley, and then charged the same client $3,000 for a few hours work.

"Why did Attorney General Allen wait until two weeks before the primaries to prosecute Pelletier and Caskley?"

"The bank commissioner last November and December turned over evidence to the Attorney General on the men who wrecked the closed trust companies."

criminal matters which were being conducted by the Attorney General's office.

He said in firm of Hurst, Jones & Hall defended the men in the Trust cases and did a good job, as the case started four years ago, has not come to a conclusion as yet.

"I have said, and I say now, Governor Cox declared, 'that the Attorney General of Massachusetts ought not to put himself under the obligation which he is putting himself under today, by such open and persistent advocacy of his cause by every one of the members of that firm who have all gone out in the streets talking matter me.'

Referring to Mr. Hurst's charge that he was under the control of Charles H. Innes, the Governor displayed a package of letters. These he said, were from Mr. Hurst, but relating to appointments which have to be made in the future. "If he thought Mr. Innes controlled me," said the Governor, "if he directed my action, why didn't he go to him? What did he bother me for?"

The Governor then declared that Mr. Hurst visited him a few days after Mr. Pelletier was removed, and admitted that Governor Cox had been right when he insisted that Tufts should be tried in court.

"I want to ask Mr. Hurst," he said, "if Charles H. Innes dictated the appointment of Edmund F. Ballou to the district attorney of Suffolk County? I want to ask him if he can name any individual or any one act of mine which I have done under the influence or the dictation of Mr. Innes or follows his wishes in any regard?"

He declared he had never had any with Mr. Innes, and that he had never asked him to do an unworthy thing. The Governor added that Mr. Innes is a lawyer, Mr. Hurst, as president of the Bar Association, should prove disinterested charges against him if he knows anything against him.

The Governor took up legislative bill giving the Attorney General the right to summon a special session of the Grand Jury.

"The Legislature refused to put the emergency preamble on it," he said, "and so that law will not go into effect for ninety days unless the Governor took action. It was represented to me that here were cases pending in connection with Pelletier and Caskley which would become outlandish unless I, as Governor, declared it to be an emergency measure."

"I want to know now why no procedure has been taken against those men who were exposed in the proceedings in the Supreme court. I want to know why it is that the State Commissioner placed evidence in the hands of the Attorney General last November and December against those banks which have been liquidated—I want to know why there has been no procedure and no attempt to bring indictments against those officials of the closed banks during all this time, when the Bank Commissioner, and myself for that matter, have been receiving blackmail letters and threats.

History of Peters Case Referred to by Cox

The Peters case referred to by Governor Cox in his speech at Faneuil Hall today is that of Frank H. Peters, a wool merchant of Boston, who became involved in an affair with a woman.

He testified that he was summoned to the office of District Attorney Pelletier and told a serious charge had been placed against him. He was informed, Peters testified, he would be indicted unless "he could fix it up in some way."

Then, Peters alleged, he was told "I would advise you to see Caskley and see if you can't get it fixed up. He represents the complainant."

Peters retained counsel, but did not personally see Caskley. Demand was made on him, he said, for the payment of $50,000 to $75,000 to settle the claim of the woman. He refused to pay and was indicted upon a serious charge.

When the case approached trial, Peters again saw Pelletier, and Pelletier is said to have remarked, "Why haven't you fixed this thing up?" Thereafter Peters paid Caskley $10,000 and a general release was signed. The following day Pelletier issued a writ of habeas corpus in the indictment against Mr. Peters.

BOSTON SPORTSMAN CAPTURES VICIOUS SHARK OFF MIAMI

BOSTON MAN LANDS VICIOUS MAN-EATING SHARK OFF MIAMI, Fla. Bathing lost much of the fun of surf splashing until this big chap was safely on shore and lashed. It lived for several hours after its capture by Eddie E. Sheppard, Boston photographer, and a party of friends. The sea terror weighs over 300 pounds and measures 11 feet long.

WHAT A RACKET SHE MAKES, BUT HER NET Score is Always High! Anyway, "thirty-loving it" on the beach is the way's windpipe for developing the figure, according to Miss Rose Goodwin of Revere. She likes to beat the sun out in the morning and then beat a tennis ball around the sand. She always plays to the gallery. But that isn't her fault.

Better get your ol' shootin' iron out, because (come closer) there's going to be a good duck season.

"THOSE ENDEARING Young Charms!" HOW FAST DO YOUR BONES MOVE? DID YOU know that your health and character are dependent, to a great extent, upon the rate of articulation of the bones and the joints? Dr. R. D. Schulte, famous physician, says that the joints reflect the condition of the body as quickly as any part of the anatomy. American universities, of course, those of Greater Boston, may adopt the system of grading its candidates for athletic honors by determining the articulation. The photo, for instance, shows a sprinter receiving a prize with a physician keeping tabs on the special recorder. (Landed runner, New Rel.)

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

There are no better men more to be trusted than the financiers of the world. They are the men who have made the world what it is today. They are the men who have made the world what it is today. They are the men who have made the world what it is today.

I recall one of Andrew Carnegie's remarks made in a recent interview. He said that he had never known a man who was not a financier. He said that he had never known a man who was not a financier. He said that he had never known a man who was not a financier.

I was once in New York when I saw a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier.

Charles M. Schwab's tender heart was a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier.

One of the things that I have seen in the world of finance is a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier. He was a man who was a financier.

NEW YORK ALL R. R. STRIKERS

Daugherty's Appeal for Blanket Injunction Granted by Judge in Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Federal Judge A. Williams today granted blanket injunction against all rail strike activity.

The injunction and their leaders are prohibited in any way interfering with the operations of the railroad or their employees.

They must refrain from violence, force or coercion and must not seek to quell their jobs.

They must not intimidate men seeking employment.

They must not interfere with the U. S. mail.

They must keep strictly within the law at all times.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—(By the Associated Press).—Suit for an injunction against all striking employees of the railroads of the United States and their union officials was filed in United States District Court today by Attorney General Daugherty.

The suit was filed shortly after the arrival of Attorney General Daugherty in Chicago today. The plea for injunction made the Railway Employees Department of the American Federation of Labor, the six striking shop crafts and 120 system federations.

MOVE TO RESTRAIN ALL.

The suit seeks to restrain all strikers from interfering in any way with the operation of the railroads. It was filed before United States District Judge Wilkerson.

Beside the railway employer's department, the six international unions, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, International Brotherhood of Steamfitters and Iron Shipbuilders, International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, as well as 120 system federations were named as the objects of the injunction.

NAMES UNION PRESIDENTS.

The application for injunction specifically named the presidents of the various union organizations involved in the present strike, which started July 1 last, following a wage reduction of the Railroad Labor Board reducing wages of certain railway employees throughout the country.

The suit seeks to enjoin all railway employees, strikers, servants, union agents, associated and members and all persons acting in aid or in conjunction with them, primarily, until final hearing, and permanently thereafter, from in any manner interfering with, hindering or obstructing railway companies, their

Cut This Dance if You Would Stay Single

New York, Sept. 1.—A dance designed especially for the benefit of baneful woe, was among the results today of the annual convention of the American Society of Teachers of Dancing.

Just why the new dance called "Stay it with dancing" will lead to marriage proposals was not explained, but members declared that there is no place like the ballroom for "popping the question."

The dance has many of the features of the old-fashioned step—it was the outgrowth of two days' exchange of ideas by the dancing masters.

Agents, servants or employees in the operation of their respective railroads and systems of transportation or the performance of their public duties and obligations in the transportation of passengers and property in interstate commerce and the carriage of mails.

Attorney General Daugherty asked that the railway men and their attorneys, servants, agents, associates, members, employees and all persons asking aid or in conjunction with them "be enjoined from in any manner interfering with, hindering or obstructing said railway companies or any of them, their agents, servants or employees in the operation of their respective railroads and systems of transportation, or at any time or place by displays of force or numbers, the making of intimidatory threats, acts of violence, opprobrious epithets, jibes, suggestions, of danger, taunts, entreaties or other unlawful acts or conduct toward any employees or officers of said railway companies or any of them towards persons desirous of or contemplating entering into such employment, and from preventing or attempting to prevent any person or persons from freely entering into or continuing in the employment of said railway companies."

Strike Will Go On, Says Labor Leader

Washington, Sept. 1.—(By the Associated Press).—Leaders of the striking shovels will not allow their attempts to make the strike effective whatever action is taken by the court in Chicago, as a result of the injunction proceedings instituted by Attorney General Daugherty, it was said here today by W. H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, one of the largest international striking groups.

"The filing of this suit is just another blunder to be added to the large list which the administration has already made in dealing with the railroad situation," Mr. Johnston said. "It is surprising Mr. Daugherty should attempt to restrain the railroads instead of the men. The administration has done everything it could to help the railroad management."

Mr. Johnston asserted that it would "take more than a mere injunction suit or an injunction against the complete collapse of some of these railroads in the next thirty days and add to the strike."

"We shall continue with the strike without the complete collapse of some of these railroads in the next thirty days and add to the strike."

Men still have some constitutional rights in America, and we shall stand on them."

Word of the court action being in Chicago had a bombshell effect among labor leaders generally and there were many expressions of surprise among government officials themselves.

President Daugherty asked for a blanket injunction against all strike activity. He refused to make any commitment.

WIFE SUES NEWTON

Mrs. Norma Loring Accuses Him of Beating Her Mother

Seated on the veranda of the Woodland Country Club at Andover, Mrs. Norma H. Loring, No. 11 Morton street, Newton Centre, saw an automobile drive up to the clubhouse.

She noticed it particularly because it closely resembled her own car, that had been presented to her by her husband, Nathaniel T. Loring, prominent cotton and linen dealer of Boston, whom she had sued for divorce a few months before, charging unfaithfulness.

Looking more closely, Mrs. Loring realized that the car was actually hers. She viewed this by examining the license number.

RECOGNIZED DIVORCEE.

Then she looked at the driver in the car, and recognized Mrs. Ethel Mortlock, a divorcee of No. 43 Centre street, Brookline. Mrs. Mortlock was the correspondent named by Mrs. Loring in her suit for divorce, which is still pending.

Mrs. Mortlock did not see Mrs. Loring. Mrs. Loring waited until she got out of the car. In her purse she had an ignition key. She slipped into the automobile and calmly drove away with it to her home.

This was last Wednesday, according to Percy A. Guthrie, No. 127 Federal street, Mrs. Loring's counsel.

BROKE THROUGH WINDOW.

That night Mrs. Loring received a call from her husband. He refused him admittance and he broke in through a window. She ran upstairs and locked herself in. From outside the room there came sounds of a scuffle followed by screaming. Going out, she says she saw her mother, Mrs. Rose L. Hyatt, being struck by the husband. She ordered him out of the house, but he answered with several blows.
